INT. LIVING ROOM

Jake is sitting on the couch as credits roll. He's about to hit the next button but shifts uncomfortably in his seat.

ANNOUNCER (V.O.)
You know the feeling.
(beat)
Seven episodes into a marathon and your body wants you to get up.
(beat)
But if you want to avoid spoilers with your friends tomorrow, you have to binge watch.

Jake looks to camera.

JAKE
There's gotta be a better way!

ANNOUNCER
There is!

JAKE
Huh?!

ANNOUNCER
Introducing Paraflix!

JAKE
Paraflix? What does that do?

ANNOUNCER
What doesn't it do? It's only the solution to:

Scrolling list on screen:

ANNOUNCER (CONT'D)
Joint pain. Restlessness. Bladder suppression. Bowl suppression. Neck immobilization. It'll even clear up moderate to severe acne!

JAKE
Sounds too good to be true! I better talk to my doctor about this.

ANNOUNCER
No need! We got one right here!

Doctor enters into frame.

DOCTOR

Hi. I'm doctor Yuri Pavlovich
Shvets.

(beat)

Yes, rumors are true. Drug works!

JAKE

But are there any side effects?

DOCTOR

What?! Side effects? Is medicine!

The doctor pushes pills on Jake then stands confidently as a new list scrolls over the screen. Jake pops the pill.

ANNOUNCER

Common side effects include:
Nausea. Uncontrollable diarrhea.
Neck immobilization. Paranoia.
Suppressed heart rate. Eczema.
Catatonia. Other death-like symptoms. Litigation pending.

CUT TO:

INT. LIVING ROOM

Jake sits immobile on the couch, looking strikingly like Jack Nicholson in The Shining. Static lighting his face.

ANNOUNCER

Now doesn't that feel better?

Jake struggles to look at the camera. Then struggles to nod.

Fade to black.
