EXT. ARID MOUNTAINOUS DESERT - DAY

FADE IN:

RICK GIRARD, 34, races on foot along the dry, hardened ground.

Suddenly an explosion rocks him to the left, he rolls with it and pushes himself on, faster, harder than before.

Multiple smaller explosions perforate the ground behind him. Someone or something clearly wants Rick dead.

RICK (V.O.)
I don't carry weapons.

Rick runs fast, quickly approaching a cliff with a devastating, vertigo-inducing drop. Shots ring past his face.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
Don't need 'em.

Rick brazenly jumps off the cliff with a surprisingly well-executed swan dive.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
I can't fly.

As Rick presses his arms tightly to his side to achieve maximum aerodynamic posture, the something that was chasing him makes it's way to the edge of the cliff.

A gruesome nine-foot-tall TRI-PED carrying a weapon not-of-this-earth skids to a halt. It becomes clear we're not in the Mojave. Nowhere near.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
I'm not invincible.

Rick rockets towards the ground.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
But, I'm not defenseless.

Rick sees another TRI-PED patrolling the base of the cliff that he's quickly approaching.

It's of supreme luck that this tri-ped below doesn't see him.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
I have one very specific ability that makes me the most sought-after sucker in the universe.

In a flash of light, Rick disappears, leaving a swirl of particles that rush to occupy the space he left in his wake.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
I can control. I can... become.

The tri-ped at the bottom of the cliff gets knocked uncomfortably off its stance by an invisible force.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
Think of it like hot-wiring a car.

The tri-ped regains its balance.

Rick, now in complete control of the beast, looks down at his hands holding his own very menacing firearm.

He looks up to the top of the cliff at the other nine-foot-tall beast and performs a very arrogant salute.

He then casually saunters off in the other direction. Throwing his gun over his shoulder triumphantly.

RICK (V.O.) (CONT'D)
(smugly)
Sure beats waiting tables.
