

Top 8 Football Tailgating Items You Didn't Know You Needed

By: Chaz Wilke - Staff Writer

Football season is upon us! And that means our attention is turning to tailgating, the perennial pre-game activity that uses greasy food, music and time with friends as a way to wait out those last few hours before kickoff. We've compiled a list of must-have tailgating items that you didn't know you needed!

Toolbox for tailgate gear

When you have a bunch of random cooking utensils, spices and cutlery, there's no better place to store them than a toolbox! It keeps things organized and has an unmatched durability.

Large plastic tub for dirty dishes

No one likes doing dishes at the game. Bring a big plastic tub with a lid to the game so you can stow your dirty dishes away without dirtying up your car.

Metal bucket for hot embers

When you're done tailgating, you want to go straight in to the game. You don't want to waste time waiting for embers to die out. Bring a metal bucket to throw the smoldering embers in so you're free to find your seats in the stadium.

Consider getting new ones so your Jell-O shot doesn't taste like Ranch dressing.

Little sealable and disposable sauce containers are a perfect transportation device for Jell-O shots! Make them in your team's colors and just watch your tailgating guests get amped for your favorite team's impending victory!

Bluetooth Speaker

Tailgating in silence is a punishable offense in the Constitution. True story, don't bother checking. Be sure to bring a Bluetooth speaker to pump out the jams before kickoff! Many Bluetooth speakers run on battery power which can help keep the drain on your car's battery minimal while tailgating.
