Automate Your Process with Lead Generation Software

By Chaz Wilke, Staff Writer

May 2, 2014

We're all busy. From running errands to picking the kids up at school, we're running ourselves ragged in the name of productivity. So as an affiliate marketer, it may be time to consider automating some of your activities by using lead generation software.

Finding the right Lead Generation Software

There are many different companies offering their versions of lead generating software. Each package comes with its own strengths and weaknesses.

Let's take a look at a few of the biggest names in the lead generation software industry.

Marketo Marketing Software

With Marketo's lead generation software, automation is the name of the game. Marketo understands the changing industry and attempts to anticipate the changing needs of the industry by offering solutions for many of the new standards of internet marketing including social media and content promotion.

Some of Marketo's key features include:

- Designed by marketers for marketers
- Scalability
- Helps create, deploy and automate marketing programs
- Helps convert leads to customers
- Gives visual representation of what's working and what isn't
- Helps identify your exact ROI
- Includes access to a powerful network of experts, ideas and solutions

LeadExec Lead Generation Software

Developed by ClickPoint Software, LeadExec Lead Generation Software has garnered high praise from some unexpected companies. Dana Messina is the retired CEO of Steinway & Sons, makers of handmade pianos, and he praises LeadExec Lead Generation Software as easy to use. "Our favorite feature is the ability to track the amount of time our dealers take to open a lead once we've delivered it to them," he says.

LeadExec Lead Generation Software hopes to satisfy the needs of every affiliate marketer. It provides verification, distribution reports and filters for lead qualifications.

Some key features included in LeadExec Lead Generation Software:

- Provides the power to capture internet leads as well as route phone calls generated from your website and landing pages
- Capable of integrating with "any third party lead provider or form provider"
- Ensures that your company follows the TCPA rules that recently went into effect
- Step-by-step walkthrough to help users create their personal lead distribution setup
- Users are able to define lead distribution times as well as daily and monthly totals
- Real-time reporting on lead performance

Jumplead

Jumplead is developed by Mooloop Ltd. and is nearing the release of v3. With a user interface similar to WordPress, Jumplead hopes to provide a powerful software package that remains easy to use.

Jumplead's site confirms what to expect in the rapidly approaching v3 release:

- Fully responsive admin center

- Improved workflows
- Improved conversion form builder
- Improved landing page builder
- Responsive landing page templates
- Search results position tracking
- Live geographic visitor mapping
- Community forum

Existing features include live chat so you can actively engage with your prospective sales leads directly on your site. After a visitor completes one of your lead capture forms, Jumplead will create a contact file that is filled with that visitor's information. That contact will then get updated with that user's activity on your site so you have an at-a-glance view of their interest.

Also, a very powerful component of Jumplead is the wide array of automations an affiliate marketer can utilize on their own site. It can be as simple as receiving notifications of a returning lead, or even setting up parameters to automatically send a personalized email to a heavily active lead.

Takeaway

Each of the options for lead generator software outlined above has its own strengths and weaknesses, so not every solution will be right for you. Take a moment to decide what features would best benefit you and let the power of automation through lead generation software help propel your online business to the next level!
