Useful Tips from Famous Affiliate Marketing Blogs

By Chaz Wilke, Staff Writer
August 25, 2014

Every affiliate marketer could use a little motivational shot in the arm from some of the top affiliate marketing blogs out there. We've compiled a few quick and useful tips to help you align your campaigns and expectations with successful Internet marketers like John Chow and Charles Ngo.

JohnChow.com

John Chow is one of the largest names in affiliate marketing blogs. He's outsourced some advice from one of the most successful entrepreneurs in history, Richard Branson. While Branson wasn't speaking directly about Internet affiliate marketing, the message applies. Branson's quote that Chow finds so inspirational to affiliate marketers reads:

"To me, business isn't about wearing suits or pleasing stockholders. It's about being true to yourself, your ideas and focusing on the essentials." - Richard Branson

Chow breaks down the quote into two main components. Be true to yourself and your ideas while also focusing on the essentials.

- Be true to yourself and your ideas

This speaks to the passion that drives your motivations. If you operate your affiliate marketing blog dispassionately or in conflict with your motivations and ideas then you are likely to fail.

- Focus on the essentials

An affiliate marketing blog that lacks focus is likely to lose readership. You grow an audience by maintaining a laser focus on specific essentials and proving your authority on the subject.

TopRankBlog.com

Lee Odden at TopRank Blog suggests a simple and effective method to increase the authoritative caliber of your blog. In a sense, he suggests you tap into the wisdom of industry influencers. Try to grab a minute of an influencer's time, either via email, phone, or by a moment alone at a conference. If you can snag a few nuggets of insight, you can spin what they say into an authoritative blog post, or even potentially a whole series of posts.

As the article on TopRankBlog.com explains, this form of content collaboration is often mutually beneficial. Influencers get another platform to be heard. You get to lean on their authoritative position in your industry.

And your readers get added value from your blog. This means a more engaged readership, additional traffic, and hopefully more conversions.

Odden stresses the importance of defining your goals and topics before seeking out influencers. In this case, you will approach an influencer with more thought-out and measured questions on a specific topic.

Copyblogger.com

Perhaps the most potent advice for content creating affiliate marketers is to introduce your worldview through your writing. You may find yourself in the midst of a crowded niche and are scratching your head on how to stand out. Introducing your personal perspective on your niche and the world as a whole will create sincere content. It will read with heart and will educate your visitors.

No matter where you live, what you have done in life and who you are as a person, each element shapes your worldview. In turn, that shapes your content. Your worldview will help create structure to every piece of content you write and may help develop a loyal following. This is exactly what you will need if you're hoping to grow your brand.

Ivan-Ong.com

Ivan Ong presents a post on his site that shares a few interesting tips on how to become a winner in CPA marketing. The tips cover a variety of topics including mindset, budget, testing methods and analysis. The big takeaways are that successful affiliate marketers always scrutinize available data and are prepared to lose money in the testing process.

Your focus should be on the long stretch of a campaigns success, not quick returns. Ong's post suggests that a measured strategy will always trump a churn and burn strategy, where you might focus only on immediate gains knowing the strategy might fail soon thereafter.

TheMail

TheMail has quickly become a destination for affiliate marketing news. One of the more valuable recent posts includes sound SEO strategies for 2014.

- Create Video Testimonials

The concept of using some form of video in your affiliate marketing efforts is nothing new, but TheMail suggests a more specific approach. Using video testimonials on your site helps increase your site's authority.

"You can put together a video testimonial by getting your best customers to represent your products and services," reads the article.

- Create High Quality Backlinks

TheMail prescribes affiliate marketers narrow their focus when pursuing high quality backlinks. It says that if you place importance on creating the best content possible there is an increased chance that influential sites will link back to you. TheMail concludes that your focus on quality content as opposed to outreach might give you a leg up. This may attract publishers to you instead of you having to seek them out.

CharlesNgo.com

Among Ngo's 10 steps that blueprint a profitable campaign, a few that stood out include researching the offer you are looking to promote. If you do a little sleuthing and find other people who are promoting the same deal as you are, then you may find a few good tricks that you might have overlooked.

Another key element to a profitable campaign according to Ngo is to intelligently scale your campaign. Running a functional campaign that can make a few hundred dollars a day can be considered a baseline requirement to becoming a successful affiliate marketer. Ngo suggest that if you want to make more than $10,000 a day then you have to know how to scale your campaign to widen your audience. This includes identifying and including new traffic sources and deciding which countries to include in your campaign.

Takeaway

These tips are from just a few of the most successful affiliate marketing blogs, some may work for your campaign, and others may not. Even the best advice may not necessarily work for your specific situation. But hopefully some of these tips resonated with you and might lead you on to your own path of increased traffic and higher conversions.
